He provides background and current work of the Office of National Drug Control Policy (ONDCP). He addresses opioid use trends and sequela: overdose deaths, newborn and fetal complications where the mother was abusing opioids and heroin, heroin and fentanyl use increases, and blood-borne infections from shared needle use. Mexico is mentioned as a primary supplier to the US for heroin. Then former President Obama's administration's response is given. This includes the 2011 Prescription Drug Abuse Prevention Plan: better education, more drug monitoring programs, safer drug disposal, and decreasing the practice of "pill mills" and "doctor shopping". Botticelli concludes with an update on progress made under the Plan, as well as the increased funding to improve access to naloxone and enhanced efforts to prevent illegal drugs from entering the country.
